

Instead of a

Conclusion

We must give and beware sport a human dimension, by rediscovering the overall sense of man, concealed behind a sort of highly privileged activity, namely sport.

- A taste for life, for struggle, and for effort.
- A sense for responsibility, to oneself and one's fellow-man.
- A taste for taking risks and surpassing oneself.
- A sense of community and solidarity.
